

Programmes for services access

The Women University of Azad Jammu and Kashmir is committed to ensuring equitable access to basic services for all its students and the broader community. The university has implemented various programs to enhance accessibility to educational resources, healthcare, counseling, and financial support. These initiatives include scholarships for underprivileged students, health services, and mental health counseling to support student well-being. Additionally, the university collaborates with local NGOs and government agencies to extend these services to the wider community, particularly in underserved regions.

1. Free Healthcare Services

The Women University of Azad Jammu and Kashmir (WUAJ&K) offers students and the local community free healthcare services. A medical center within the Allied Health Sciences campus is staffed by a qualified doctor who provides essential health services, including routine check-ups, treatment, and medical advice. In addition, many training sessions and workshops are arranged to raise community awareness about health issues. This initiative ensures that students and community members can access quality healthcare without financial constraints. (Evidence in Annex. I)

2. A Range of Seminars and Workshops on Health, Nutrition, and Food Security

The WUAJ&K has been actively organizing training sessions and workshops focused on health, nutrition, and food security, with a commitment to ensuring equitable access to basic services for all its students and the broader community. Evidence of such events is provided in the Annex for reference. (Evidence in Annex. II)

3. Seminar on Safe Drinking Water

The WUAJ&K organized a seminar on safe drinking water, focusing on disadvantaged communities. The seminar aimed to raise awareness about the importance of clean water access and provided practical solutions for ensuring safe drinking water in underserved areas.

This initiative reflects the university's dedication to ensuring equitable access to basic services for all its students and the broader community. (Evidence in Annex. III)

4. Awareness Seminar on Water Sanitation and Hygiene

The WUAJ&K conducted an awareness seminar on water sanitation and hygiene, addressing critical issues related to public health. The seminar focused on promoting hygienic practices and the safe management of water resources. This effort is part of the university's ongoing initiatives to ensure equitable access to basic services for all its students and the broader community. (Evidence in Annex. IV)

5. Awareness Seminar on Child Mortality

The WUAJ&K organized an awareness seminar on child mortality, aiming to educate the community on the causes and preventive measures related to child deaths. The seminar highlighted the importance of maternal and child health care, nutrition, and early interventions. This initiative reflects the university's dedication to ensure equitable access to basic health services for all its students and the broader community. (Evidence in Annex. V)

6. Counseling and Mental Health Services

The WUAJ&K is committed to support the mental health and well-being of its students and the local community by offering comprehensive counseling and mental health seminars open for public.

These services include individual and group counseling sessions, stress management workshops, and mental health awareness programs. Trained counselors can assist with various issues, including academic stress, personal challenges, and emotional well-being. By providing these essential services, the university fosters a supportive environment that promotes mental health awareness and resilience, ensuring that students and community members can access the resources they need to thrive emotionally and psychologically. (Evidence in Annex. VI)

7. Support in Education

- a. Scholarships
- b. Discounted Hostel Charges
- c. Discounted and Quality Food in the Hostel
- d. Discounted Transport Facility and Free Shuttle Service

(Evidence in Annex. VII)

8. Access to University Resources for Freelancers

The WUAJ&K extends its commitment to equitable access through the "Programmes for Services Access" by offering "Access to University Resources for Freelancers." This initiative allows freelancers from the local community to utilize university facilities, such as libraries, internet access, and co-working spaces, enabling them to enhance their skills, work more efficiently, and connect with a broader network of professionals. By integrating this program, the university supports its students and empowers local freelancers, contributing to economic development and fostering a more inclusive environment for lifelong learning and professional growth. (Evidence in Annex. VIII)

9. Provision of Clean Drinking Water to the Community

As part of its "Programmes for Services Access," the WUAJ&K is dedicated to ensuring the well-being of its surrounding community by providing clean drinking water. Recognizing the importance of safe water for health and sustainability, the university has established water purification stations accessible to students and residents. This initiative not only supports the basic health needs of the community but also reflects the university's broader commitment to improving living standards and promoting public health. The university plays a crucial role in fostering a healthier and more resilient community by ensuring access to clean drinking water. (Evidence in Annex. IX)

Report on Food Quality

(From January to June 2023)

The Directorate of Student Affairs at Women University of Azad Jammu and Kashmir (WUAJ&K) Bagh is committed to ensuring students' access to nutritious and hygienically prepared food in Cafeterias and Hostels. This report outlines the supervision and monitoring activities undertaken during the first half of 2023 to ensure the highest food quality and hygiene standards within the university's hostels and cafeterias.

1. Objective

The main objectives of these efforts were to ensure that the food served meets nutritional standards, that high hygiene standards are maintained during food preparation, storage, and serving, and that the university complies with local and national food safety regulations. Importantly, any student complaints regarding food quality and hygiene were promptly addressed and resolved, demonstrating our commitment to student satisfaction.

2. Actions

Over the past six months, the university has been proactive in conducting unannounced visits to all university cafeterias, including those at the main campus, College of Education campus, Benazir Palace campus, and the new construction site at Bani Pasari. These inspections, which focused on food preparation, storage, and serving practices, are a testament to our dedication to ensuring the highest food safety standards. The freshness of ingredients, cleanliness of kitchen and serving areas, and the proper storage of food items, particularly perishables, were all meticulously checked. Special attention was given to ensuring refrigerator temperatures in cafeterias, girls' hostels, and faculty hostels complied with food safety standards.

Periodic meetings were held with cafeteria management to discuss student feedback and to strategize on continuous improvements. This commitment to ongoing enhancement ensures that we always strive to provide the best possible service. Regular training was provided to all cafeteria staff on food safety and hygiene practices, covering essential topics such as hand washing techniques, gloves and hairnets, and the importance of maintaining clean works paces.

Staff compliance with these practices was monitored during inspections, and feedback was provided to reinforce good practices where necessary. We also recognize the vital role of our students in ensuring food quality and hygiene. Active hostel students were designated to oversee the hostel mess and dining area during food serving hours, providing valuable feedback to the Directorate and actively contributing to our efforts.

3. Observations

a) Overall Hygiene

The cafeterias and hostel kitchens generally maintained a good standard of cleanliness in both kitchen and serving areas. Students taking meals to their rooms were creating unnecessary messes and disrupting discipline. Consequently, hostel cooks were advised to enforce a two-hour dining period and not allow students to take meals to their rooms.

b) Food Quality

The quality of the food served was consistently high. Fresh ingredients were used in meal preparation, good-quality oil was utilized, and no extra food was cooked. The menu was prepared by students under the hostel warden's supervision.

c) Staff Compliance

Most staff adhered well to hygiene practices. Ongoing training and reinforcement of procedures have been effective in maintaining these standards. Kitchens were cleaned daily.

d) Student Feedback

Students' feedback was largely positive, though some requested more diverse meal options and quicker response times to specific dietary requests.

4. Future Actions

A feedback system will be implemented in the Directorate of Student Affairs office, allowing students to report any concerns regarding food quality or hygiene anonymously. This feedback will be reviewed regularly, and immediate action will be taken if any issues are reported. Further collaboration with the university's medical officer will be pursued to discuss potential improvements and to utilize her expertise in assessing compliance with food safety regulations.

5. Conclusion

Supervising and monitoring food quality and hygiene in university cafeterias and kitchens requires constant vigilance and proactive management. So far, the steps have ensured that students receive safe, nutritious, and enjoyable meals. The Directorate remains committed to upholding these standards and continuously improving practices.
