Local start-up assistance

Year: 2025

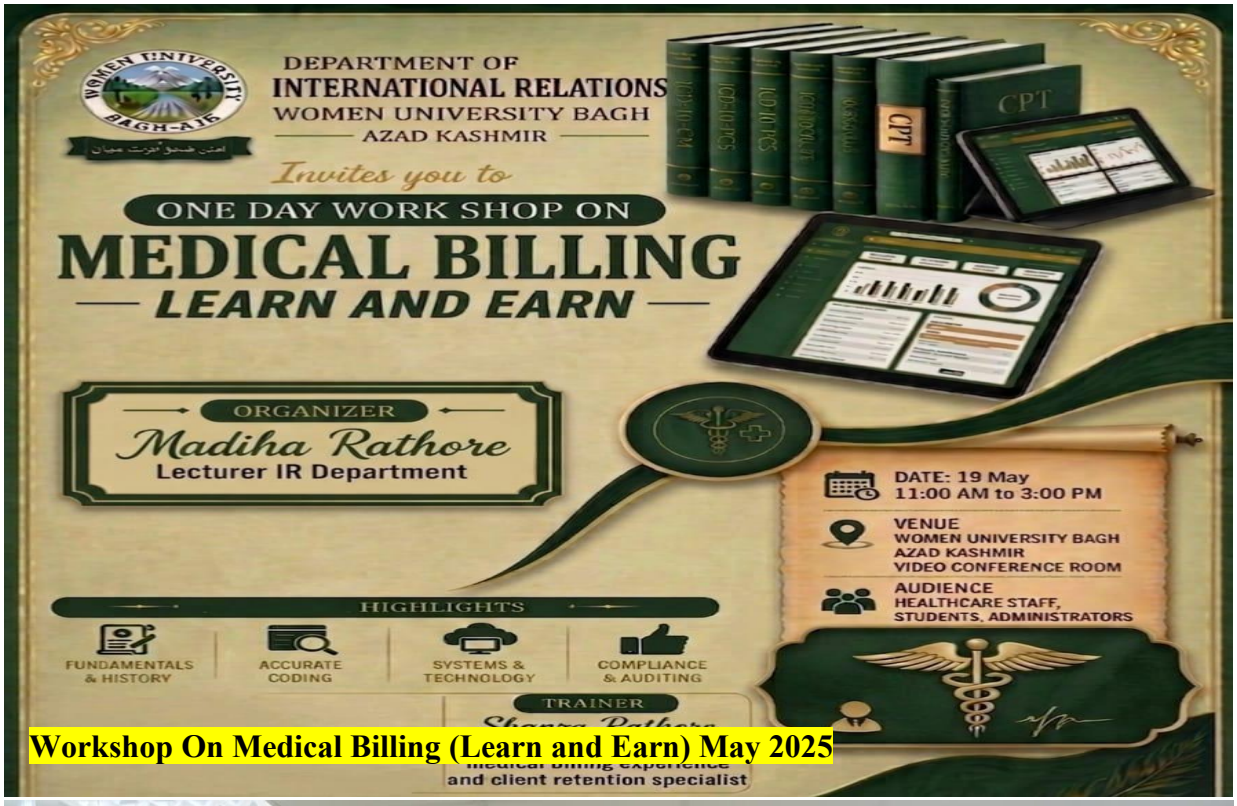

The Women University of Azad Jammu and Kashmir, Bagh, fosters financially and socially sustainable entrepreneurship by providing community members, especially women, with the knowledge, skills, and support needed to launch and manage successful ventures. Through mentorship, capacity-building programs, access to facilities, and awareness seminars, the University enables participants to create businesses that are economically viable while generating positive social impact within their communities.

Seminars on Freelancing, Digital Skills, and Startup Development

These seminars were organized to equip community members and students with knowledge of freelancing platforms, online earning opportunities, and entrepreneurial skills. Participants were trained in digital competencies, remote work practices, and strategies for accessing global freelance markets, enabling them to establish flexible, home-based income-generating ventures with minimal startup costs. In addition, the seminars focused on skill development for local startups, covering areas such as business planning, marketing, financial management, and innovation. By promoting both freelancing and entrepreneurship, the University supports economic independence, encourages sustainable business creation, and contributes to local community development.
